Throwing, catching, and kicking (developing gross motor and eye/hand coordination)	Medium sized soft ball, bean bags, or larger ball
Walking a line for balance	Chalk line, balance beam (piece of 2x4), or curbing
Walking, running, climbing	Outdoor area, child climber or some steps. A park area with some steps and/or climber.	Developing muscles, coordination, balance and ability to climb- take steps one at a time. Take walks, nature walks, develop races, walk up and down stairs.
		Remember to use the Curriculum Guide, ASQ, and Portage, when discussing gross motor development with the family. All three sources will offer developmentally appropriate activities.
		For Infants and Toddlers: Infants should be placed in safe settings that encourage physical activity, allow infants to explore their environments and do not restrict movement for prolonged periods of time. Infants should not be placed in carriers, play pens, strollers, car seats, etc. and left for long periods of time. Infants need plenty of floor time. Place infant on a blanket with toys that encourage movement and exploration. Include baby games such as peek-a-boo and pattycake daily.
